Dear Colleague

Clark Scientific Editing

I would like to strongly recommend Dr Catherine Clark and her support for authors to you. I have known Dr Clark since she was a PhD student working in Glasgow and have followed her career closely since that time. She had a successful career as a Research Scientist, with extensive experience in scientific writing (including original papers, review articles and research proposals). She has developed extensive experience in the preparation of manuscripts and the presentation of data. Because of this she is in an ideal position to help authors with the preparation of manuscripts for publication, particularly where English is not their first language.

As an Editor of a Journal (Clinical Endocrinology) I am fully aware that well-presented manuscripts have a much higher chance of being accepted than those that are poorly written or presented. For this reason it is worth ensuring that manuscript presentation (which includes the way in which data are described) is given due attention. Dr Clark can provide an invaluable resource in this regard and I would recommend her to you without any reservation.

Yours faithfully
